

Presenter Training - Individual Coaching

Overview

Our individual coaching programs are designed to give the maximum benefit in the minimum time. At a location to suit the individual, we spend the time they need giving in-depth personal training on the areas where they most need help.

Who is it for?

These sessions are ideal for senior managers and executives who need help fast, and want complete, personalised focus from the experienced trainer. They are also ideal for those who can not afford to spend 2 days out of the office on our Expert Presentations workshop, yet still need support and advice on how to make their presentations more successful.

Process

1. A no-commitment telephone consultation takes place between the individual and the trainer to ascertain the specific needs for the coaching. This allows us to advise on the likely time needed, and also ensures that the coaching session is as focussed as possible.
2. The client chooses which level of coaching service they require.
